Anam Cara Acryl on canvas, 140 x 130 cm

The piano keys seem to move by themselves. The emerald coloured stars move to the rhythm. The spirals symbolize progress and development. The intertwined snakes converge at an energy level. They wind around each other. The lion gets wings. In the centre a man and a woman. They touch each other, very intensely. They are equals. From the golden cups in their hands a soft yellow light seems to radiate, like waterfalls which change love into a flowing energy. Everything else disappears. These are moments of infinite freedom. The sexual passion has been transformed into an unconditional love which breaks through all boundaries:

Anam Cara.

I will bring you happy flowers from the Mountains, bluebells, dark hazels, and rustic baskets of kisses.

I want to do with you what spring does with the cherry trees

Do's & don'ts Pearls are gifts of nature and very vulnerable. If you want to enjoy them for a long time, then see to it that you clean them carefully and put them away.

Treat pearls with dedication at all times.

Avoid contact with cosmetics, hairspray or perfume; this latter consists alcohol which dissolved the outer layer of the pearls.

Pearls can best be cleaned with a moist, soft cloth.

Then dry them with another soft cloth. Afterwards the necklace should be dried on a flat surface. If you hang the necklace it loses its correct shape.

Keep pearls always separated from other jewelry – especially jewelry consisting of cut gemstones – to avoid scratches on the pearls.

Have your pearl necklace threaded once every two years. String can stretch or decline.
